ROUTELLE & BURR, PROPRIETORS.

C. A. DOWD, EDITOR.

Published every morning except on Sundays and public holidays.

Ex-Governor John M. Palmer, of Illinois, is the latest aspirant in the field for the Democratic nomination for President.

We publish on the first page this morning an interesting debate in the House, February 13th, on the motion to amend the Canadian tariff.

At the close of the debate the motion was defeated by a vote of 49 to 104.

George Dawson, for a long time the associate of the Hon. Wood in the conduct of the Albany Journal, and probably entitled to at least an equal share of the credit for his success, followed his more famous chief into the unseen world Saturday.

He had reached the age of 72 years, and over fifty years of his life had been passed in faithful, worthy newspaper work.

Peterson, N. J., proposes to have clean sidewalks, but in the attempt to enforce a law to that effect has found himself in a peculiar dilemma.

Snow fell there on a recent Sunday, and few walks were cleared. Warnings were issued for the arrest of 200 or 300 citizens for neglect of the city ordinance requiring all sidewalks and gutters to be cleared within four hours after a snow storm.

But there is a State law which forbids Sunday labor, and under that law the arrested citizens claim immunity. An interesting trial is expected.

Colonel Ingersoll, in a dispatch to a friend regarding the death of the lamented Charles E. Thorne, says: "The tragedy here is not the death of a man, but the passing of a life, a life that was a noble and hopeful one."

It is difficult to see where one holding the views of Colonel Ingersoll can find any foothold for "hope." Heedless and defiant the only power which has lifted the curtain and gives the living a glimpse at the future, Hope rests upon faith, and it is among the last sparks that die in the human breast.

Such sentimentality leads to the belief that there is no hope even for the genial, warm-hearted, eloquent, and noble Pope Bob.

Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Hon. Andrew D. White, President of Cornell University says the co-education of the sexes is a good thing. No scandals have arisen at Cornell growing out of the system. Indeed, as regards morals, the young women have acted as a restraint upon the young men. The results have been better scholarship and better deportment. He remarks: "We did in the classes that men will outwork women in study, and that two or three of them will be far ahead; but we also did that, taking the class altogether, women have a better average—that is, a better general average. Taken altogether, the results thus far have fully realized the most sanguine hopes of the friends of co-education."

The Hon. Edward McPherson, Clerk of the National House of Representatives, who will leave his place when the new Congress assembles, says the Providence Press is spoken of for the position of Superintendent of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing of the Treasury Department.

Mr. McPherson held that place during the Hayes administration, and in a short time converted the Bureau from an asylum for the dependents of Congressmen into an actual business establishment on business principles, saving the Government several hundred thousand dollars a year by the operation. We hope that he may go back to his old position if he is willing to accept it.

Thanks to Mr. Reed, of Maine, the House Appropriations Committee intended to the Sundry Civil bill an appropriation which will retain the two lights at Cape Elizabeth as they now are. This is the end of a long controversy between Mr. Reed and the Light House Board, and Mr. Reed has finally been successful. The Light House Board wished to shut down one of the lights. To this all the navigators of the coast are strongly opposed. Last fall Mr. Reed managed to postpone the execution of the order of the Light House Board, and now Congress, for the first time, has decided that the lights must be maintained. The Light House Board acquiesces in this conclusion.

Wash. Cor. Bos. Journal.

Ex-Gov. Morgan. The departure of Edwin D. Morgan from a membership of the war Governors who did so much to strengthen President Lincoln in his arduous task. He raised and sent from the State of New York nearly 300,000 armed men within the first two years of the war, aided by an efficient staff, especially his Quartermaster General, Chester A. Arthur, now President of the United States. After the restoration of peace Governor Morgan came to the United States Senate, where he sat next to Charles Sumner, with whom he was very intimate. Governor Morgan was a very useful Senator, always present at the meetings of his committee, and so long as every request made by a constituent for information from a department was complied with. He did not pretend to be an orator, but he always voted right, and there was a general feeling of regret when Governor Morgan defeated his re-election.

"Perry" in Boston Journal.

The star of the Southern Bourbons are rapidly coming home to roost, and if J. Hendrix McLean, Independent candidate for Governor of South Carolina, is not to be believed, he is a very good representative of the Philadelphia Press, that "system of political fraud is not only destroying the liberties of the people, but it is demoralizing society in all its phases, and absolutely threatens to destroy all its history and its future."

As evidence of this I need only say that it is a common thing for the Democratic party to practice fraud on each other in their primary elections, and in conventions, and worse still, in the same corrupt methods are being practiced in the church elections. But the people are awakening to the evil results of this system of fraud, and we are on the eve of a political upheaval. The issue is freedom of speech and purity of the ballot. Mr. McLean is a native-born Southerner, and we see that though the result of his election would be a victory for the Democratic party, he is likely to prove still worse for the perpetration.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS.

Representatives who will lead the minority in the 48th Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10, '93.

Special Correspondence Whig and Courier.

Several of the leading Republicans of the present House have been left at home for the 48th Congress. Most notable among these are Messrs. Burrows, of Michigan, Robeson, of New Jersey, Page, of California, Williams, of Wisconsin, and Capron, of Maine.

Barrows was defeated at the polls, and by default. His district is Republican, and he could have been elected easily, but he generously went to the rescue of other candidates and neglected his own campaign. The people of Maine know Barrows well as a public speaker. He will be missed from the House, for he is not only a good Republican and a good legislator, but a man of noble character.

Mr. Robeson is one of the ablest men in the House, but he is not popular among the people. He is a good legislator, and he is a good speaker, but he is not a good politician. He is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind.

Mr. Williams is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind. He is a good legislator, and he is a good speaker, but he is not a good politician. He is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind.

Mr. Capron is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind. He is a good legislator, and he is a good speaker, but he is not a good politician. He is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind.

Mr. Burrows is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind. He is a good legislator, and he is a good speaker, but he is not a good politician. He is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind.

Mr. Robeson is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind. He is a good legislator, and he is a good speaker, but he is not a good politician. He is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind.

Mr. Williams is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind. He is a good legislator, and he is a good speaker, but he is not a good politician. He is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind.

Mr. Capron is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind. He is a good legislator, and he is a good speaker, but he is not a good politician. He is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind.

Mr. Burrows is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind. He is a good legislator, and he is a good speaker, but he is not a good politician. He is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind.

Mr. Robeson is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind. He is a good legislator, and he is a good speaker, but he is not a good politician. He is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind.

Mr. Williams is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind. He is a good legislator, and he is a good speaker, but he is not a good politician. He is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind.

Mr. Capron is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind. He is a good legislator, and he is a good speaker, but he is not a good politician. He is a man of noble character, and he is a man of noble mind.
